

Adventures in Genetic Genealogy

Genealogical vs. Genetic Family Trees

(Glen Saucier, M.D.; 2023)

Part Deux : It Can Happen to You

In an effort to at least eliminate surnames from a list of possible progenitors for my line, I compiled a listing of Y-DNA found for certain surnames that were common in the Avoyelles/ St. Landry areas ca 1800. The results are presented as follows:

The number in parentheses following the surname, represents the total number of Y-DNA reports found for that name, which is followed by the reported final result in red. The list of haplogroups preceding the final result, (a progression in the direction of the arrow > ), was compiled by the author in an effort to bring the reported result back to a major subclade as can found on several haplogroup charts available online. One must keep in mind that the progression of subclades may differ between companies. Also, my progression, in most cases, does not include every intervening haplogroup, but only those that I hope will be sufficient to give the reader a roadmap for finding their full progression in those charts, and finding any commonalities with other surnames.

Disclaimer: For Entertainment Purposes Only! One may notice the possibility of NPEs for certain surnames. The exploration/verification of any such implication is left to the reader.
